

John Riley

Colin Richard

John has a very unattractive hairstyle. He struggles with communicating to his barber exactly the style of haircut he desires.

One time while visiting a new barber, John decides to express his communication difficulties. His barber recommends him a new app that allows users to “try” different hairstyles with a simple tap of a screen.

John discovers a haircut he finds very appealing. He shows his barber the hairstyle through the app, and the haircut begins!

John loves his new hairstyle! He feels as fresh as ever. Since he is so satisfied with his new hair, he decides to leave his barber a five star rating through the app for others to see. He also favorites the hair style in the app so he doesn't lose it.

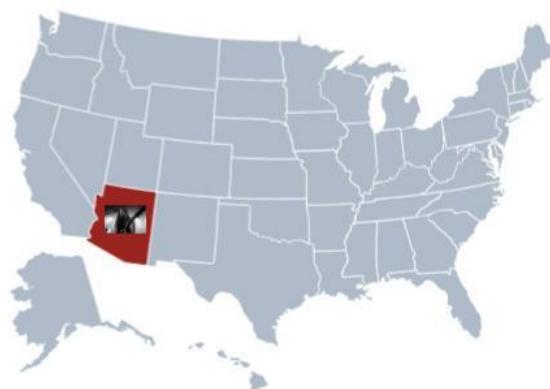

With his future in mind, John schedules a future appointment with the same barber through the app. His appointment date is based on a recommendation provided by the app for his specific hair style in order to keep it looking clean.

Vincent Romero

Johnson Jeevis is a successful rock musician who has recently gone on tour with his band, Johnson and the rocks

Johnson travels to the great state of Arizona to play a gig.

While exploring the local scenery, Johnson trips and falls, and his hair is damaged by Arizona's rough desert environment.

Johnson hastily travels to his nearest local barbershop in order to get his hair fixed before the big show. He asks the barber for a little trim and a good shampoo. Little does he know he is actually in a barber shop for first time barbers

Much to his horror, the barber (an elderly southern gentleman) misinterprets his request and gives him a boring and stereotypical cut instead. When Johnson tries to go to his gig all the audience leaves in disgust, while ridiculing him and the band

Johnson angrily shakes his fist at the sky. "If only there was some kind of app that could have given me a recommendation on what barbershop to use!" he says, "if only i could have seen reviews of that shop and their style of cutting hair!"

Michael Piku

Timothy wakes up one morning and has a horrible realization: his first day of high school is in a week! He hasn't cut his hair in months, and he would get made fun of for weeks if he kept it the same. He takes some money out of his mom's purse and rides his scooter to SuperCuts to get a nice cut.

While Timothy is getting his haircut, he hears a clink, and something push on his head. He's scared, but thinks nothing of it. When he gets turned around, to his horror, he finds a huge streak down his head. "That'll be 20 dollars, please." Enraged, Timothy runs out of the store, and rides his scooter back home, sobbing.

Luckily, our app has Timothy covered. Timothy downloads it and finds a list of barber shops near him. He specifies his type of hair and chooses a barber.

Timothy has a small chat with his barber, and lets him know his current situation. The barber says he may be able to help, but he needs to see more and isn't positive. Hopeful, Timothy goes anyway.

Timothy meets up with his barber. His barber is horrified, but does what he can. He works his magic, and now Timothy is feeling better than ever. He's ready for high school now, and nobody will ever make fun of him again.

Timothy goes to school and makes a ton of friends. All of his teachers like him, and he feels good and gets all his work done too. Timothy is just one example of the power of our app.

Janice Hubbard
by Saqib Tymus

As homecoming approaches Janice is a big mess. She can't find the right hairstyle that suits her. With the dance a week away, she is running out of time.

A hot football player comes up to Janice and asks her to go to the dance with her. Leaping with joy, Janice says yes!

Now having a date, Janice worries even more about how she is going to look. She decides that she is going to first deal with her hair, not having it cut for months

She decides to ask her friend Emma, who was voted "Best Hair" last year, where she can find a good place to get a good haircut.

Emma recommends an app where you can review hairstyles before getting them, find the best nearby barbershops, and hair products to keep that hairstyle.

Janice downloads the app, and loves it because of how easy it is to use. She finds a cute hairstyle that suits her and she goes with it. She then finds a barbershop that is 5-star and cheap.

Janice, excited, goes to the barbershop and shows the barber what haircut she wants. The barber tells her that is an easy cut and she will look great!

After the barber finishes, Janice looks in the mirror and absolutely falls in love with the haircut. And she got it for only $15! She knows she will be at the center of attention at her homecoming dance!

Manan Patel

Harry has a banquet coming up and his hair and beard needs to be in tip-top shape.

Harry Beard asks his multi-billionaire father for money for his haircut. His father had limited the amount of money he can spend because Harry has been spending too much money on his hair. Now his allowance is only $20 a week.

Harry had no idea what to do with 20 bucks since he gets the top stylists in the world every time he needed a haircut. Harry has gone insane.

In dire need for a haircut, Harry asked his middle-classed friend where he goes for a haircut noticing his hair is spectacular for a impoverished fellow. His friend said he uses an app where he finds barbers near him who have good ratings and fit his needs.

Harry uses the app and goes to a local barber shop near his home. Harry was quite impressed of the quality of the barber shop and the tools that they use.

Harry had gotten a fresh cut from the barber he found through the app. Harry recommends all his friends and family to use this app. Harry is now ready to go to his banquet.